

ART OF DEVISING 2026

What Moves Me

Theatre/Dance Seminar led by Sanja Krsmanović Tasić

6th-13th of September 2026.

Horto, Greece

What Still Moves Me is a dance theatre seminar for people aged 50+ that invites curiosity, reflection, and creative expression through movement.

It is a poetic inquiry into what continues to stir us, emotionally, socially, sensorially and humanly. What moves us as humans but also what makes our bodies want to move, explore, dance, gaining strength, beauty and versatility on the way.

Movement emerges not from from attention, memory, curiosity, and care, from memory embodied in us. Life experience dominates over technique, allowing poetic expression without pressure. Our bodies get expressive by time, full of stories to tell.

Rather than focusing on technique or performance, we work with lived experience, everyday gestures, breath, voice, memory, and imagination. Gentle exercises stir the spine and muscles, we find grace in movement and also explore words, spoken, written through creative writing exercises as well as sung. Movement arises from attention and intention, not from how the body “should” move.

The space we will create is gentle, inclusive, and non-judgmental. Participants are encouraged to listen to their bodies as they are today, to choose the level of physicality that feels right, and to explore both movement and stillness.

Through individual exploration and collective composition, the workshop creates space to share what matters now, what stirs us, concerns us, delights us, or keeps us engaged with the world. No previous dance or theatre experience is needed, only openness, presence, and a willingness to explore what still moves you, as a person and also what moves our bodies to action and dance.

Starting with different exercises that warm up the body and develop the physical vocabulary of each individual, the seminar will focus on developing different materials from which a devised performance art piece can be created. The participants will together pass the process of creating physical scores based on personal inner stories, that will be later edited into scenes.

Based on techniques of Eastern European laboratory theatre, and the 20 th Century masters of contemporary theatre and dance (Grotowski, Barba, Biomechanics, physical theatre, Yoshi Oida, Carolyn Carson), different martial art techniques, and also unique theatre/dance techniques developed by Sanja Krsmanovic Tasic after 40 years of dedicated work in the realm of performing art and dance

The result of this one week intensive seminar will be in a presentation held in Hadjinikos Hall.

The four to five hour daily workshop schedule will allow you enough time to explore and enjoy the beautiful beaches of Horto and Pelion, and the natural wonders of the area.

It is necessary to have comfortable clothes that allow movement, socks or soft shoes for indoor activities, sneakers or hiking shoes for outdoor activities, a big towel or shawl for lying down on the ground. Please bring a song or music that inspire you.

About Art of Devising

The Art of Devising seminars are for actors and dancers with experience, and/or for students, teachers and creative drama pedagogues, also for anyone interested to embark with us on this journey of personal revelations and development. Through researching, creating and developing physical and vocal scores we will generate material that will be shaped into the performance itself, using creative dramaturgy of montage. There are two forms of the Seminars: the intensive one, and the one that is open for all. The intensive seminar requires a certain level of skill and knowledge, as it also gives a space for challenging personal boundaries and restraints. The one targeted for the 50 + participants has shorter daily work hours and is more gentle in approach, respecting the rhythm and ability of all participants. The seminars also include work on creative writing of texts for the performance, site-specific work and also work with rhythm, music and song, all together to create the body of the final presentation/ performance.

The seminars are dedicated to the search of the „dance of the soul“, the harmonization of the inner world and listening to the whispers of nature, in search for the clear, true and wondrous expression of each individual.
